

GARY DRURY Publishing™

19 West Peachtree Lane
Hodgenville KY 42748-1123

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: g.drury.publisher@gmail.com

Gazing Through the Prism of Life

New collection of effective poems from a thought provoking award-winning musician-poet

Oceanside, NY – April 06, 2016 – Award-winning musician and poet boons a passionate and discerning pleasure for poetry lovers enthusiastic for life. Musician-Poet Sandra Glassman presents Gazing Through the Prism of Life. Released by Gary Drury Publishing, her literary masterwork touches on themes surely to tantalize readers while inspiring their reading experience

Glassman was considered a child prodigy at age nine. Music was always in Glassman's life and now her music is played on internet radio from South Africa. Sporting two children's book of poetry, published poetry Chocolate Icing on Vanilla and Poetic Pastels, two of her poems rest in the Holocaust Museum, Washington D.C. in their archives. Gazing Through the Prism of Life displays dedicated and genuine imagination at the poet's deepest core. Embraced with her soulful passion these poems colorfully depict life's happy moments and sorrows in vivid reality. Sandra Glassman's book of fine poetry offers hope, encouragement as it kindles an embodying warmth in the cockles of your heart. She aids readers with encouragement maintain their strength and faith in God.

Sandra Glassman describes her writings as emotional, comical from life's changing times. To her it seems life is changing channels on TV. There is beauty of nature, harsh reality of war, and disbelief of how societies treat their fellow man. Glassman attest plethora awards, medals and honors from various poetry venues. But what brings her greatest joy is sharing her sincerest passion 'Poetry' with others.

About the Author

Sandra Glassman lives in Long Island New York where she is a writer of children's books and a consummate poet. She composes music and has written a classical piece for a book. Glassman is a former piano teacher of twenty years. Most of her wonderful students were young children, and some adults. She enjoys writing poetry where life and fiction cross paths. Music and poetry are a combined force of pleasure for Glassman. She wrote a poem about our nation's space program that was sent to the White House. Now Glassman's prized framed poem is brilliantly displayed in her family room sporting former President Bill Clinton's signature. Sandra Glassman presently has written over two thousand poems, and recipient of plethora awards. She records music for Emerald Records, located in Nashville Tennessee, Hilltop Records in Hollywood California, and Sun Records in Nashville Tennessee. A year ago, Glassman started guitar lessons which she never thought she would enjoy so much! Sandra Glassman has two lovely adult children Lee and Marrah. Because Glassman was able to read music and play before any structured piano lessons, music has helped her through life's rollercoaster up and downs. Sandra Glassman said "Words are a most powerful weapon, think before speaking."

Gazing Through the Prism of Life – by Sandra Glassman

Publication Date: April 06, 2016

Trade Paperback; 14.99; 64 pages; 978-0-692-67026-2

Available wherever fine books are sold Bookstores & Online.

Request a complimentary PDF review copy, contact the publisher at garydrurypublishing@gmail.com.